Dr. V. A. Norganza, territorial votarisary surgeon, started a discussion at the convention of the Modical society of Hawnii yesterday after noon which may not and until the sensions come to a close.

He opened an argument on tuberculosis, and late last night, after a paper had been read on that subject by Dr. A. N. Doctor Sinclair replied at length to the arguments made against his paper. In referring to Doctor Norganrd's criticism of the bureau's negligence in not taking proper steps to safeguard the public from the milk danger, he said that the bureau had many things to at tend to, that it could not be expected to handle all things, and that besides this duty did not fall along to the bureau.

He was free to admit that milk as a carrier of tuberculosis was something to be signred with, and that several cases could probably be traced to it. Douter Norganra's paper was exceedingly in teresting and not so technical but that the points could easily be grasped by a layone.

On the north, the invacers of East Prussia are making steady progress towards Gerdauen, an important railroad city, in the face of persistent opposition from the Germans, who are falling back from one prepared position to another in the lake district. In the center, between the Vistula and the Warta Rivers, where the Russian advance had been driven back from Kalisk, the despatches from Petrograd now state that the Russians have turned and made a stand, against which the main German army is being hurled in vain.

GREAT STRUGGLE BEFORE CRACOW

Still further south, along the Silesian-Polish border, from Czenstochwato Cracow, another great battle is raging, with the final issue yet to be determined. Berlin reports of this battle say that the Russians are being defeated, with great losses in men and supplies. The official Petrograd despatches state merely that the fighting is continuing.

In Galiota the Russian success has been uninterrupted. The commander at Przemysl is negotiating for terms of surrender, while the advance of the Slavs into Eastern Galicia, south from the Uniester, is bringing them back close to the Hungarian border. PRZEMYSL OFFERS TO SURRENDER

Definite word concerning the siege of Przemysl comes by way of Bucharest via Rome. This report states that the commandant has sent an offer to the Russian commander that he will surrender provided he and the troops of the garrison be allowed to march out with the honors of war and be allowed to join the main Austro-German army at Cracow without molestation. This offer the Russians have refused, in the belief that the fortresses cannot hold out much longer and that an unconditional surrender will soon be forthcoming.

It is known, says this despatch, that the garrison is getting short of ammunition and that the ravages of cholera are making great inroads into the force shut up by the investing Russians.
